What is the EAIFO?

The EAIFO has been a leader and innovator in college football officiating services since our inception in 1945. Over the years, our credibility and reputation has been impeccable. Our quality of football officials and service to college football is second to none throughout the world. The EAIFO provides the best opportunity to be recruited, trained and advanced through the college ranks. The EAIFO never stops trying to be the best in its commitment to college football and that's why we are the largest and best college football officiating organization in the world. The EAIFO has eight (8) chapters throughout the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic states. The EAIFO has over seven hundred and fifty (750) members who service independent colleges and established conferences at the Division I-AA, II, and III levels.

The EAIFO has an exclusive contract with the ECAC to service its schools at all levels. The ECAC's membership includes 316 Division I, II and III colleges and universities from Maine to North Carolina. In addition, the EAIFO has contracts with various other

Division I-AA, II and III conferences located throughout the eastern region of the United States who are not under the ECAC.
